

Media Contact:
Michelle Tolleson
Media Relations
FuelBelt, Inc.
michelle@fuelbelt.com
401.289.0724 x 118

June 11, 2009 / For immediate release

FuelBelt bottles named in Good Housekeeping “Best Products” list

Good Housekeeping recently chose two FuelBelt products to include on their prestigious “Best Reusable Water Bottles” list: the 22oz Bottle and the 10oz Bottles 2-pack. Click here to read the full article at www.goodhousekeeping.com/product-testing/reviews-tests/green-products/best-reusable-water-bottles.

About FuelBelt, Inc.

FuelBelt is the world leader in hydration belts and accessories to the tri, run and cycling markets. Founded in 1997 by 6-time Ironman World Championship participant, Vinu Malik. FuelBelts have been used to break world records, personal bests, and have even been used at the Olympic world stage, where every effort and every second counts. For more information, please visit www.fuelbelt.com.

The screenshot shows the Good Housekeeping website's 'Best Products' section. The main heading is 'Best Reusable Water Bottles'. Below the heading, there is a description: 'The Good Housekeeping Research Institute tested 32 reusable, BPA-free water bottles to find options that are spill-proof, easy to use, durable, stylish, and easy to clean. Here are the bottles, shown in descending order of overall score. Find out more about the test.'

The featured product is the 'FuelBelt 22-ounce Bottle ($4)'. The description states: 'At only $4, this bottle can keep you hydrated and leaves you with change to spare. It's made from polyethylene, a plastic that is manufactured without BPA. Pro: By tank, it's among the cheapest of all tested. Working belts, which hold one or two of these bottles, are sold separately ($32 to $37). Con: With its simple look, it's not much of a fashion statement. (In clear only: fuelbelt.com)'

Below the text is a large image of the white 22-ounce bottle with the FuelBelt logo. To the right of the image are 'PRINT' and 'EMAIL' buttons. At the bottom right, there is a small gallery of other bottles.

The screenshot shows the Good Housekeeping website's 'Best Products' section. The main heading is 'Best Reusable Water Bottles'. Below the heading, there is a description: 'The Good Housekeeping Research Institute tested 32 reusable, BPA-free water bottles to find options that are spill-proof, easy to use, durable, stylish, and easy to clean. Here are the bottles, shown in descending order of overall score. Find out more about the test.'

The featured product is the 'FuelBelt 10-ounce Bottles 2-pack ($10.95)'. The description states: 'These small bottles, sold in sets of two or four, are made from polyethylene, a plastic that is manufactured without BPA. Pro: Belts, sold separately ($32 to $45), hold from two to six bottles—enough to keep you hydrated during the longest walk. Con: While the bottles are inexpensive, the belts are fairly pricey. (Size: in vibrant pink, clear, lime green, surf blue, Tealite, and clear with red cap; 10-oz: in clear with red cap only: fuelbelt.com)'

Below the text is a large image of the two white 10-ounce bottles with red caps. To the right of the image are 'PRINT' and 'EMAIL' buttons. At the bottom right, there is a small gallery of other bottles.